

BYU seeks to alleviate safety faults

LIVARR G. WEBB
Universe Staff Writer

Non-conformities with safety regulations have found in BYU buildings, campus officials are using ways to minimize before possible actions by state or federal agencies.

According to Wallace I. Hansen, manager of campus all phases and areas of BYU community come under the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, a highly extensive list of safety health regulations applicable to all businesses or organizations in the U.S. that employ at least one person.

Although BYU safety is said to have a positive approach and is in good shape, problems in complying OSHA regulations have been found, especially with old buildings on campus some stairway handrails.

W. Schow, a member he campus safety committee, said these do not comply with state and hallway exit doors. The cost to adapt buildings to meet all OSHA regulations would be phenomenal, he said.

The handrails of stairways in most of the buildings on campus are from 4-6 inches too short to meet OSHA rules, said Schow. To adapt or replace the handrails in most of the buildings on campus would cost an estimated $1.5 million, he said.

Studies are currently being conducted considering alternative solutions to the problem, but thus far no decision has been made, say officials.

"We are working hard to get ready for an inspection," said Hansen. Since the federal regulations are extremely detailed and comprehensive, minor problems are bound to be found on BYU campus, said officials. Because inspections can come at any time, without warning, and fines can be levied, effort is being made to correct all nonconformities.

On Jan. 1, OSHA will change from federal control to state jurisdiction with federal supervision. BYU officials said they hope to discuss the handrail and old-buildings problems with authorities and work out a solution.

In other areas of the country, where OSHA has been turned over to state supervision, fines have been decreased and more emphasis has been placed on helping organizations meet standards instead of just fining them, said BYU officials.

Changes were made in electrical wiring to meet standards, including such things as installing new electrical outlets so cords didn't run across the floors. Training programs have been set up to emphasize safety in accordance to regulations.

According to Hansen, general untidiness results in many problems. Offices must be kept clean, and proper storage is essential. OSHA posters are now displayed in appropriate places. Accident reports have been adapted to meet standards although according to Schow, "Our own reports were just as good."

Stairways are too wide in some areas and may require a hand rail down the middle, he said. According to Hansen, all ladders and trash receptacles on campus must federal regulations.

Although the law is very comprehensive, and making work areas conform to the law is often expensive, especially for smaller businesses, Hansen is not critical of it. "It standardizes good safety procedures. Most of its critics are those who didn't care much about employee safety," he said. The precise details of the law, which allow very little flexibility or variation, are one of its good points, he said. "With the details there is very little chance for an error in judgment."

Nelson Rockefeller resigns from New York governorship

BANY, N.Y. (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller resigned as governor of New York after 15 years in office and insisted the resignation was not part of a drive for the presidency.

Rockefeller said he had concluded that I can render a greater service to the people of New York and the nation by devoting myself to the work of bipartisan national commissions," he said. He said he would resign when he would become effective next year, and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, a fellow Rockefeller, said he would take over as governor.

Only regret is that my undertaking this was interpreted as a political move to seek the presidency," Rockefeller said. "I am not a candidate for nomination for president or for any other political office."

He said he would be a candidate in the future, I do not know. I should like to keep my options open.

He continued to issue disclaimers under persistent questioning.

State Republican leaders contacted Tuesday, however, viewed the decision as a prelude to another run at the White House.

One state GOP chairman, South Carolina's Kenneth C. Powell, said, "The more time you have to pursue anything, the better chance you have of winning."

Rockefeller tried for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960, 1964 and 1968.

In 1960, he pulled out in the face of a battle with Richard Nixon, then vice president. In 1964, he made an all-out try and was defeated by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. In 1968, after weeks of wavering, he tried again and was defeated on the first ballot by Nixon.

Loggins and Messina state Y concert Jan. 18

Loggins and Messina, one of the top recording artists in the world, will perform on Jan. 18 in the Marriott Center, according to Mark Alexander, ASBYU vice president of Social Activities.

They have been working quite some time to book Loggins and Messina because we felt that they were quickly becoming one of the top acts in the country, which their record sales testify," said Alexander. "We also feel that this is an excellent group to begin winter semester with." An indication of the group's popularity with soon-to-be students is evident in the recent concert poll conducted by the Social Office in which Loggins and Messina finished 13th in the balloting.

The story of these two successful recording artists began with their first album, "Sittin' In." Jim Messina had split with a group called Poco to become an independent producer, and the first artist to be produced was Ken Loggins, a songwriter, singer and guitarist.

Things unfolded quickly once the duo got into the studio. Jim liked Kenny's material a great deal, and when they were working out arrangements and vocals, Messina sang some of the parts.

It turned out that everything they did together was popular, and soon afterwards the two joined forces with other musicians and the group included into what is now today.

Y students--'good loan risks'

The rate of default on federally guaranteed student loans in the United States is more than 12 times higher than the rate of default at BYU, a recent survey showed.

Dr. Robert W. Spencer, dean of admissions and records at BYU, said the percentage of defaulted BYU student loans is only six tenths of one percent (0.6 per cent), while the national rate is approximately 7.4 per cent.

The 7.4 figure was provided to BYU directly by the U.S. Office of Education Division of Insured Loans in Washington, D.C.

A recent article by a national wire service states that an estimated 60,000 college and trade school students have defaulted on $55.2 million in federally guaranteed loans over the past five years and the government has recovered only $3.2 million of that amount, according to the U.S. Office of Education.

The total number of loans received by BYU students exceeds 15,000. Dr. Spencer

Kent State probe calls grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will take the renewed investigation of the 1970 Kent State University slayings before a federal grand jury in Ohio next week.

Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger announced Tuesday night that a grand jury will be convened in Cleveland Dec. 18 "to receive sworn testimony and act in its capacity as an investigative body."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork concurred in Pottinger's decision, which reversed the action of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who chose in August 1971 to drop the investigation without presenting evidence to a federal grand jury.

Four Kent State students were slain on May 4, 1970, when a contingent of Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire on a campus gathering, including a group demonstrating against the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia. An Ohio state grand jury exonerated the guardsmen, but a presidential commission called the shootings "inevitable."

In Christmas message

Elder Hanks stresses good will

"Wholesome, hallowed and gracious—these wonderful words represent what the Christmas season means to me," said Elder Marion D. Hanks, assistant to the Council of the Twelve, in the Tuesday devotionals.

Even though the angelic message is peace on earth, good will to men, Elder Hanks said no one person could successfully govern the world and his close associates. However there is something every person can do to bring peace in his own life and the lives of his close associates. Christ's principles and be true to one's fellow man.

"Good will, like love, is more than a language," he said. "He repeated the words of the song 'Joy to the World,' and of the words he asked, 'Have you heard them as well as sung them?'"

Speaking of Christ's birth, Elder Hanks said, "In God's plan there was placed a need for a sacrifice, an atoning sacrifice for sin, and so He came in due season. Not as man anticipated, but as God directed."

"There wasn't any pomp, no blaring trumpets, no parading or ceremony, no army, no array of greatness ushering in the King. Just a crowded inn, a manger, a mother and a baby, some shepherds and wise men, unconscious of their different stations. There were angels with a message for those with ears to hear. They were all

Price at pumps to spur '74 hike in living costs?

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Fuel price increases could raise the cost of living in the United States $27 billion, or nearly 3 per cent next year, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Tuesday.

Stein told a congressional committee he based his estimate on an expected 50 per cent increase in fuel prices.

He predicted that a 30 cents a gallon increase in gasoline prices, a major factor in the 50 per cent raise, would be needed to balance supply and demand.

Addressing the Joint Economic Committee's international economics subcommittee, he said no decision has been made on using inflated prices, rationing or taxes to deal with the energy crisis but said higher consumer prices are certain to be a result.

"We've got to face higher energy costs and decide how much we want to pay to the Arabs and how much to ourselves," Stein said.

Stein, who has admitted he and other officials have erred in some previous economic predictions, said unemployment is expected to increase between three-tenths of one per cent and six-tenths of one per cent in 1974.

To lessen its impact, he said, four alternatives are under consideration: increasing defense spending, improving unemployment compensation, expanding public service employment, and stimulating the housing industry.

Meanwhile, the government announced a program using federal computers and census information that could coordinate the organization of car pools for millions of commuters throughout the nation.

Under the program, information on where commuters live and work could be compiled to ease the forming of commuting groups.

In other energy-related developments Tuesday:

—Norbert T. Tiemann, chief of the Federal Highway Administration, said a drop in the amount of taxes collected from highway users and on gasoline could cut road funds.

—Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill asked President Nixon to allocate crude oil used in manufacturing petrochemicals to and to remove price controls on these products.

—Charles Elkins, assistant administrator for hazardous materials in the Environmental Protection Agency, said the White House has given the AEC the authority to set standards on radioactive emissions from atomic plants.

—The Air Transport Association, an airline industry organization, estimated that the fuel allocation program will force the nation's airlines to cancel 2,600 daily departures and lay off more than 25,000 employees.

—The president of the American Petroleum Institute, Frank N. Icard, said that the solution to the energy crisis is in finding more supplies, not simply sharing those that are available.

"With one or two exceptions, there is nothing in any action taken by the government to date that will provide one additional drop of oil, one cubic foot of natural gas, or one kilowatt of electric power this winter, he said.

—King Hussein of Jordan said in Amman that the Arab oil embargo on shipments to nations supporting Israel could be a "two-edged sword" because Europeans seriously affected by the oil shortage could turn against the Arabs.

Fire sprinkler violations to close nursing home

By RON E. HATCH
Universe Staff Writer

All 12 patients of a Provo nursing home will have to be relocated "as soon as possible" according to an official of the State Board of Health.

Jim Tidwell, chief of Standards and Living, said at its meeting Nov. 28, the board denied license renewal for the Mountain View Nursing & Convalescent Home, 290 E.

He said the prime reason for denial was the home's failure to receive fire clearance, in that it had not installed a fire sprinkler system. He said it's been over two years since Life

Safety Action initially issued the requirement, and the board determined the home still did not have definite plans to install a sprinkler system.

Mrs. Thelma Jensen, owner of the nursing home, said the other owner of the home died recently, leaving her legally tied and unable to go ahead with definite plans.

According to what she called "highly placed persons in Salt Lake City," she has a good case, should she decide to fight the board's decision. "But," she says, "as far as I'm concerned, it's pretty hard to fight any state or federal people, so I don't think it's worth the battle."

Mrs. Jensen says the Mountain View Nursing and Convalescent Home has been in Provo 37 years, the first nursing home in Utah established south of Salt Lake City.

She said all of the home's four Medicaid patients have been there nine years or more.

"The nursing people are about the most highly regulated industry in the country, and the poorest paid," said Mrs. Jensen. "The government's controls are enough to floor you."

Tidwell said he'll contact Mrs. Jensen soon to set a post-Christmas date for relocating the nursing home's patients.

"Good will, like love, is more than a language," Elder Hanks told those gathered at Tuesday's Devotional Assembly. It is important to be friendly towards all persons, for they could be angels in disguise, he said.

Looking for a king to set them free.

"He grew, served, taught, learned obedience through the things he suffered and did as he was sent to do."

Elder Hanks said he and his family once had been singing songs with carolers on the radio when his young daughter asked, "What does it mean to adore him?" Elder Hanks worked at an answer but every answer engendered more questions. Finally his daughter laid her hand on his knee and said, "To adore him just means to love him."

Speaking of Christmas, he said, "I love its sights, its sounds, its sense, the thoughts that it inspires, the feelings, the sentiments; I love the tenderness it evokes, the gratitude and kindness and its effect on the family."

To follow Christ's principles, mankind must be willing to love and serve God and practice true brotherhood.

Elder Hanks advised being friendly with strangers because strangers could be angels in disguise.

Challenging the audience, he said, "God loved so he gave, Christ loved so he gave; what of us?"

Dr. Christensen lectures tonight

"Religious Education A Latter-day Saint Point of View" will be discussed by Dr. Joe J. Christensen, associate commissioner of education for Seminars and Institutes for the Church at 7:30 tonight in the FLWC Ballroom.

The free public address will be given as part of the Commissioner's Lecture Series. Established in 1972 by Neal A. Maxwell, LDS commissioner of education, the series aims at giving young members of the Church and the public opportunities to hear from well-known and high-level LDS scholars.

Dr. Christensen was called to his present position in September 1970 while he was serving as mission president in Mexico City. His responsibilities include the weekday secondary and college-level religious education provided by LDS Seminars and Institutes of Religion to more than 250,000 students in about 50 countries across the globe.

A BYU graduate, Dr. Christensen has served as coordinator of LDS Seminars and Institutes for Salt Lake County and as an institute director on several occasions. He is currently chairman of the Young Adult Committee of the Melchizedek Priesthood MIA General Board of the Church.

Surprise for thief

BLOOMING GROVE, N.Y. (AP) — Harriet Mann says whoever stole her antique wood-burning stove from her front lawn would be in for a sad surprise if they tried to use it.

Mrs. Munro, who said she used the stove only to put plants in, said the holes in it makes it dangerous to use as a burning device.

Students urged to apply for loans

Students desiring loans for Winter semester are encouraged to avoid the rush and apply for these loans now at the Student Financial Aids Office. According to Douglas Bell, Assistant Financial Aids Director, students waiting until the last minute often have to wait in long lines before completing loan application procedures.

Bell also advises students having short term loans for Fall semester to have their loans paid off by the end of the semester. Those students with delinquent loans will not be permitted to register for Winter semester until loan agreements have been met.

Students told to plan loan repayments

Students with long term loans who will complete their course work Fall semester are advised to arrange a repayment schedule as soon as possible with the Office of Student Financial Aids.

According to Douglas Bell, Assistant Financial Aids Director, long term loan participants are required in their contracts to arrange a repayment schedule before leaving BYU. Bell advises any students who have not arranged a repayment schedule to contact the Student Financial Aids Office immediately.

House votes to limit Soviet loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to prohibit more than $5 billion in U.S. credit loans for Soviet trade until the Soviets permit freer emigration.

The amendment by Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, was approved 319 to 80 over the objections of the Nixon administration. Later the full trade bill was passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate.

The bill would give the President most of the powers he has requested to lower U.S. trade barriers for a new round of international trade deals next year.

Most of the debate Tuesday centered on the emigration provision. For the Soviet Union to get U.S. credit loans under the amendment, the President would have to certify that the Soviets permit Jews and other citizens to emigrate freely. The measure applies to all Communist countries except Poland and Yugoslavia.

European relations

Kissinger eases fears

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger's debut before the European allies as Secretary of State eased their fears of American-Soviet domination without totally eliminating them.

The conference of the North Atlantic Council of Foreign Ministers also ended with better European understanding of United States objectives in the Middle East.

Kissinger clearly was the star of the show, but even his soothing words failed to win agreement in the European Economic Community (EEC) on all those objectives, particularly in France.

"I came here to discuss with our closest allies the problems and opportunities produced by the emergence of the EEC as a political entity, by the changed situation in the field of weapons, by conditions in other parts of the world," Kissinger told newsmen after the deliberations.

"There were some frank exchanges, and points of view were openly expressed. But I think we have all gained a better understanding of each other's positions."

The two-day meeting was notable for the chances Kissinger seized to reaffirm continuing American military, political and economic commitment to Europe.

In one gesture intended to symbolize the American wish for better understanding, Kissinger met with foreign ministers of the nine-nation Common Market. The party in Brussels' Hilton Hotel offered a hopeful prelude to the market summit in Copenhagen Friday, when European-American relations will be at the center of informal talks.

Six men killed in carrier blaze

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Six men were killed Tuesday when fire broke out aboard the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk about 700 miles east of the Philippines, the Navy reported.

Officials said the blaze left 38 other men suffering from minor burns or suffering from smoke inhalation.

The fire broke out at 8 a.m. EST as the huge ship steamed westward for deployment to the Western Pacific.

Truck drivers to protest energy-saving measures

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Truck drivers threatened new protests over higher fuel prices and lower speed limits, with one group warning of a shut-down Tuesday night.

Teamsters Union President Frank Fitzsimmons said, however, he had heard nothing about a stoppage and a spot check of state officials showed little concern about a possible shutdown. Neither was there any immediate evidence of independent truckers preparing to leave their vehicles in the garage.

John Sassi of Newark, Del., one of the drivers in the forefront of a group which blocked the Delaware Memorial Bridge last week, said in Washington, D.C., that up to 10,000 truckers would stop work in the Tuesday night protest.

He said the drivers had been "urged to take them (their rigs) to the barn."

Sassi, who claimed to be representing 8,000 to 10,000 independent truckers, was testifying before a Senate Public Works subcommittee on legislation dealing with the energy crisis.

"If we can't get action here today we're going to have a shut down," said Sassi. "We can't go on like this. We want it in writing."

Sassi indicated later he wasn't satisfied with assurances that the federal government was moving to ease the drivers' problems.

Drivers who blocked roads in the East and Midwest last week and in California Monday are seeking a ceiling on diesel fuel prices, guarantees against price gouging, and higher speed limits.

Exemption improperly denied

WASHINGTON — A U.S. district judge ruled Tuesday that a public interest research group was improperly denied exemption from federal income taxes and said he was concerned about the possibility of White House influence in the case.

Judge Charles R. Auto prices raised

DETROIT — Two of the nation's auto makers raised prices Tuesday as the industry moved out from under federal economic controls.

Ford and Chrysler announced average wholesale price increases of $150 on their cars and trucks. General Motors and American Motors were expected to make similar adjustments later in the day.

Defense accused of stalling

SIoux FALLS, S.D. — South Dakota Atty. Gen. Kermit Sande says a defense motion aimed at moving the case of a Custer County Courthouse defendant from state to federal court is merely an attempt to stall the proceedings.

Attorneys for David Hill, one of 19 persons charged in connection with the American Indian Movement-led protest last February, moved for the transfer Monday. The attorneys alleged a conspiracy by the state government in prosecuting Hill.

South Vietnam claims success

SAIGON, South Vietnam — The South Vietnamese claimed successes Tuesday in the Mekong Delta and at Kien Duc in the lower central highlands.

But the government command reported 20 of its soldiers were killed in fighting northwest of Saigon.

In the war for the delta's rice harvest, the South Vietnamese command said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops made three attacks on government positions 50 to 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Senator attacks

Nixon tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., charged Tuesday that President Nixon failed to meet the legal requirements for taking a $570,000 income tax deduction on his pre-presidential papers.

Weicker, junior member of the Senate Watergate committee, announced he had turned his findings over to Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander and said the responsibility for determining their validity rests "solely within the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Service."

The senator and his legislative assistant, A. Searle Field II, briefed reporters on their 11-page legal memorandum and 26 supporting documents that constitute the most exhaustive examination yet made public regarding the controversial tax break.

Gas shortage affects car sales

By KRIS FREDERICKSON
Universe Staff Writer

Local car dealers, in a recent survey, all cited the devaluation of large used cars as the major problem caused in the latest in a series of gasoline troubles facing the country.

Allen Hall, manager of Crown Motors, in citing the woes of the large cars said, "We've had to throw the book away on large car trade-ins."

Kent Peterson, of Chuck Peterson Volkswagen, explained that they can't afford to take many large cars on trade because they won't sell. He explained that while small car prices are up, large cars are selling $400 to $500 under the blue book list price.

Dean Evans of Dean Evans Chrysler-Plymouth, said that on trade-ins during the past 90 days he has seen a "decrease in the value of large cars from 15 to 20 per cent." But he explained that the used cars they've had have been moving fairly well because their prices are so low.

Don Balm, of Naylor Auto, said they don't like to take large cars in trade and that in the last 90 days he has seen large used car values drop as far as $700 below book price.

Jerry Washburn, of Washburn Motors, said their "biggest problem is that everyone wants to trade big cars, and there is no way to accommodate them." He says there is no established large car market as of now, and there's no telling what large cars are worth.

Fred Dalton, of University Lincoln-Mercury, said that their used car sales are slightly down this month, but that they were up 20 per cent last month. He attributes this to the fact that used large cars are bringing in a low trade-in price and are therefore being sold at a low price. This makes them a good buy, and people are saving more on the car than they would on gas.

Even though most small car prices have risen, dealers all tell of an increase in demand and some of an increase in sales.

Kent Peterson said that the first two weeks of November brought a decrease in sales because of a 14 per cent price rise on Volkswagens. But the last half of November brought a rise in sales, and if sales continue as they have been he expects a waiting list by Christmas.

Allen Hall says they've never been able to get as many Toyotas as they would like, and there are presently 40-50 persons on a car waiting list, which requires about a 10 to 20 day wait.

He explained that they haven't experienced a price increase, and don't expect one in the near future.

Dean Evans spoke of an increased demand for their Duster and Valiant car lines, but due to the Chrysler manufacturers' strike last fall they have not been able to get all the cars they could be selling. He says that Chrysler has asked the government for a price increase, but it has not been granted yet.

Don Balm said that while large car sales are down 25 per cent, small car lines - Colt and Dart - are up 25 per cent.

He also told of a waiting period of 60 days on Colts and a $250 increase in price.

Jerry Washburn explained that they are only able to get a limited supply of Datsuns, and there is a waiting list of about 17 people. He said prices have gone up for the 1974 models by $100 to $150, with a $300 increase on the 240Z. The only way dealers can judge demand is by the number of people coming in to look at cars, and that number is way up, Washburn said.

Fred Dalton said sales have remained constant at Lincoln-Mercury, but there has been an increase in the demand for Capris, their small car line even with a $1000 price hike. He said that they are only able to get five or six a month, but he believes they could sell more.

Speaking of large car sales, Dalton explained that their sales have remained the same.

"If someone can afford a $10,000 car, he doesn't worry too much about the price of gas," Dalton said.

When asked about the possible long-run effect of the gas shortage on large car sales,

Hall said, "I don't think it's too long before people are buying larger cars again. He believes that if and when the Middle-East crisis settles, things will go back to normal and people will be back to wanting "convenience, and safety."

United Way fund may exceed goal

By MIKE HANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Contributions for the United Way are surpassing last year's contributions to date, according to Jack Holmes, executive director of the United Way of Utah County. Holmes explained the goal of $290,000 is 90 per cent complete as of Monday, Dec. 10.

In the tenth year of local campaigning, the United Way has met or passed its goal six times, said Holmes. As the amount to date is more than last year's donations, it is anticipated that the campaign will have another successful year, continued Holmes.

Utah County The United Way of County raises money for support of seventeen agencies, said Holmes. "Ninety per cent of the money raised is used locally, meaning County," noted Holmes.

Agencies receiving assistance from the United Way include the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, and a variety of health organizations de with such illnesses as multiple sclerosis, arthritis, and blindness, said Holmes.

"The idea behind the United Way is to combine the efforts of these types of agencies gathering contributions raising funds," continued Holmes.

$200,000 from payroll. Approximately $200,000 the total funds come from employee payrolls, explained Holmes. In this instance, employees authorize the money to be withheld from paychecks.

Another $50,000 of from businesses corporations as gifts, with remaining $40,000 contributed from individuals in the community throughout the county, Holmes.

Campaigning officially began on Sept. 21, continued Holmes, "and donations come in steadily ever since."

When campaigning is in swing, the organization utilizes some 1,500 volunteers, explained Holmes. The volunteer board, which oversees the money allocations, comprises members of the county, Holmes.

"We are hopeful contributions will continue at the same rate," said Holmes. Individual donations being accepted at the P.O. office at 85 E. 200 N.

Legends of Christmas

In Poland, a few weeks before Christmas, monks bring around small packages of wafers made of flour and water, blessed by a priest, and with figures stamped upon them.

No Polish family is without these oplatki and they are sent in letters to relatives and friends, as we send Christmas cards.

When the first star appears on Christmas Eve, the whole family, beginning with the eldest member, breaks one of these wafers among themselves, at the same time exchanging good wishes.

Afterwards the master and mistress go to the servants' quarters to divide a wafer there.

In Poland it has been a tradition through the years to scatter hay or straw on the floor or on the table, a memorial of the stable at Bethlehem.

Before the cloth is laid on the table on Christmas Eve, the table is covered with a layer of hay or straw, and a sheaf is stood in the corner. It was years ago that straw was also spread on the floor.

Sometimes the straw is given to the cattle as a charm and sometimes it is used to tie up fruit-trees.

Christmas plays performed by puppets are found in Poland, as well as in other European countries.

During the week between Christmas and New Year is shown the Jaskei, or manger, a travelling series of scenes from the life of Christ or even of modern peasants.

It consists of a small travelling puppet-theater, gorgeous with tinsel and candles. The performance can be compared to the old American "Punch and Judy" show.

The marketplace of Cracow, especially at night, is a very pretty spectacle, its sidewalks all lined with these glittering Jaskei.

Star-bearing or star-singing is a Polish Christmas custom that has become traditional.

On Christmas Eve, children go singing through the village or city streets, carrying a lantern of colored paper on the top of a long rod. They sing carols and sometimes three are dressed to represent the Magi.

Boys Club delivers Christmas Cards

Over 200 boys in the Provo and Orem areas will be involved in delivering Christmas cards personally, said Alan Robinson, director of the Boys Clubs of Utah County.

The Christmas cards will be picked up by the boys from candy-striped barrels located in shopping markets throughout Provo and Orem. They will deliver the cards on Dec. 15 and 22 in person.

The boys invite patrons to drop their Christmas cards into the barrels without stamps, and donate eight cents for each Christmas card.

First year "This is the first year for the fund raising idea," said Robinson. "The Boys Clubs of Utah County will cover the Provo area while the Civil Air Patrol Cadets will deliver cards in Orem."

Robinson said BYU students in Youth Leadership will drive the boys around to their respective areas of mail delivery. Five boys will go in each group.

"The project is a little slow in getting started, however we anticipate an increase of Christmas cards yet to come," Robinson said.

Shortage to cut toilet paper roll

By BILL AHEARN
Associated Press Writer

A toilet paper shortage?

That's what Rep. Harold Froehlich, a Republican member of the House of Representatives, said Monday. Froehlich, who's from Wisconsin, said a foreseeable toilet paper crunch is "no laughing matter."

Froehlich said a shortage of paper pulp and rising pulp exports could mean various paper shortages, including a toilet paper crunch, sometime early next year. He quoted an official of Sheraton International in Boston as saying that paper products from matchbooks to memo pads are "all in short supply."

Quoting "reliable sources" in the General Services Administration, Froehlich said recent GSA attempts to buy a four-month supply of toilet paper for federal buildings came up almost 50 per cent short.

Froehlich said a national toilet paper crunch could occur when the GSA seeks to secure a four-month supply at the same time some states have one-year contracts up for bids.

Froehlich quoted a Hilton Hotels' purchasing agent as saying the situation is bad and will get worse, but a spot check of hotels around the country Monday night produced little concern about a toilet paper shortage.

"Are you putting me on?" asked a spokesman for the Marriott Hotel in Atlanta. A spokesman for the Regency Hyatt Hotel asked, "Are you serious?"

But the assistant manager of a Minneapolis hotel said that although there are no current toilet paper shortages, some are anticipated in a few months. He said hotel employees have been asked to watch distribution of all paper.

Natural disasters bring out the best in our people

Here in Utah, the telephone is used more than almost anywhere else in the world. That's why we employ more than 4000 men and women to provide your phone service. And, to make sure that service stays the best it can possibly be, we've hired more than 500 additional employees in 1973 alone.

But at times, even that isn't enough. Because restoring phone service after a natural disaster can cause some unbelievable problems.

It also brings out the best in our people. And, here in Utah, we know that we have the best.

There's a lot of hard work behind every phone call.

LDS Church videotapes

BYU TV Services aids in production

By MARIA THYGERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Instructional Television Services on campus is presently working with LDS Church authorities to make videotape productions for the Church and is looking ahead to the use of a new system of video discs for future productions, according to Harold R. Hickman, director of ITVS.

Three Church programs have already been produced and two more are in the planning and writing stages, said Michael D. McLean, production manager for ITVS.

The first major program produced for the Church was for Sunday School presidencies, said McLean. It was shown at the General Conference in October. The program dealt with how to conduct "duties and responsibilities" interviews.

Neal Maxwell, commissioner of education for the Church, narrated the second program which presented four steps of stewardship: calling, orienting, directing and evaluating. This program has been shown at a regional meeting for stake presidencies and bishops in Nevada.

The third program that was recently completed was on the training of Elders Quorum presidencies. The purpose of this program was to present ways for the presidencies to activate prospective elders.

The two programs to be produced soon deal with the Correlative Reportive System and duties of Elders Quorum presidencies.

Several regional representatives, including such men as Neal Maxwell, Tom Hyams, director of internal communications, and others, foresaw the possibility of using the video cassette for Church programs, according to Dr. Hickman.

These men referred the videotape system to the Priesthood Leadership Committee.

Church authorities agreed to have ITVS produce four major videotapes dealing with the Priesthood Leadership Program. These programs were to be evaluated for their effectiveness before the Church would plan on extensive use of ITVS facilities. The first of these major programs was the videotape on stewardship with Neal Maxwell. The remaining three have yet to be done.

The purpose of the four initiatory programs, said Dr. Hickman, is to "see if videotape can be used as a mass communication training tool, a tool that will specifically and clinically instruct."

ITVS presently uses a video cassette to produce programs. The cassette is similar to an audiotape cassette.

Prior to the perfection of the video cassette in the last two years, a system of reel-to-reel videotape was used. The advent of the cassette has made it possible for the training of people by videotape, because the cassette is less cumbersome and expensive, said Dr. Hickman. The Church is looking past the video cassette to what is known as a video disc. A video disc is like a phonograph record, he said. It uses a laser beam for making and reading the impressions and doesn't use a stylus to play back, he said.

Dr. Hickman predicts that a viable video disc system become practical in the two years in the U.S., although it is already in use in Europe.

The Church is investigating the possibility of using video disc on a Church scale, he said.

Health Center medical plan offered again winter semester

The MacDonald Student Health Center health plan has received administration authorization to be offered again during winter semester, according to Dr. Cloyd C. Hofheins, director of the Health Center.

Students will be able to sign up for the plan at registration in January.

The prepaid medical plan, offered for the first time last August, has been evaluated to be effective and workable and will continue to be offered, though possibly at a slightly higher price, Hofheins said.

The Health Center has taken a survey of the students using the health plan and found overwhelming support for the plan even if the costs should be increased, he said.

One factor that might drive up the cost of the plan is abuse of it, he warned. "Students should not try to come in for every little ailment," he said. "We want them to feel they can get help when they need it but we want them to be sure they need it."

Although Health Center

visits have increased 20 percent over last year, Dr. Hofheins said the center has not had to increase its staff. "In fact," he said, "we have a smaller staff than last year. We're very busy but it means we're giving more service to more students and we feel it is worthwhile."

Some 10,000 students signed up for the plan which offers clinic visits, lab tests and prescription drugs for the fee charged at registration. Dr. Hofheins said they are expecting an even higher enrollment in January because students have learned of the advantages of the plan.

Delta Phi Kappa, Army to sponsor hospital party

Delta Phi Kappa, the returned missionary fraternity on campus, and Army Spouses are having an exchange Friday, sponsoring a Christmas party for the youth dorm at the Utah State Mental Hospital, according to Vic Crowther, president of the fraternity.

Vic said the party will include musical numbers, singing Christmas carols, a visit by Santa and distribution of stockings to the kids, ranging in age from 12 to 18 years.

Other returned missionaries interested in attending the party should contact Gary Lord, social vice president of the fraternity, at 375-6622 or 375-6623.

Graduate Bill Norfleet

Recital to feature 'sax'

Bill Norfleet will perform on the saxophone for his graduate recital tonight at 6 p.m.

The wailing sounds of the "sax," so closely allied with jazz, will be heard in the graduate recital of Bill Norfleet, Wednesday, Dec. 12, at 6 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

Norfleet, a saxophone major, from Grants Pass, Oregon, graduated from BYU in 1972 and is presently working on his masters degree in music performance.

His recital will feature the music of the twentieth century composer Anton Webern, in an unusual quartet for piano, violin, tenor sax and clarinet. Also presented on the program will be "Sonatine" by Tcherpine and "Concerto for alto sax in Eb" by Glazounov.

Final pieces on the program will be "A little midnight music" by the contemporary composer William Schmidt and "Sonata for Eb Alto Sax and piano," by Wolfgang Jacki.

Norfleet has been a saxophone student for 14 years and has studied with Dr. David Randall and Dr. Ralph G. Laycock of the Music Department faculty. He has also been a junior high band instructor in the public schools.

The saxophone was invented in the 1840's but it wasn't until the twentieth century that it became used as a serious concert instrument. It is particularly identified with stage and military bands.

Program being evaluated and newly revised

The Tele-tip Program has now settled down to a normal routine and is being evaluated and revised, according to Dr. Ray W. Alvord, co-ordinator for the program.

Provisions for additional tapes are planned for January and suggestions are currently being accepted from students, faculty and administration members.

Art exhibit opens

One of the most important art exhibits to tour New Zealand will open at the B.F. Larsen Gallery of the Harris Fine Arts Center at BYU today and remain on view until Jan. 13.

The exhibition, "The State of California Painting," organized by the Govett-Brewster Art Gallery of Los Angeles and sponsored by the Queen Elizabeth II Arts Council of New Zealand, consists of 32 California artists represented by one work each.

The works, dating from 1966 to the present, delineate a cross section of California painting of the present.

Represented will be examples of the new realist movement which include Robert Cottingham, Richard McLean; plastic work by Jerry Ballaine, Peter Alexander; painterly abstraction by Richard Diebenkorn, Sam Francis; hard edge abstraction by James de France, John McLaughlin.

OJ approaches Brown's record

BUFFALO (AP) — O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills is within striking distance of Jimmy Brown's season rushing record of 1,863 yards and a prayer away from the 2,000-yard mark.

Can he do it with only one game left in the regular National Football League season? For that matter, will the Bills let him?

O.J. needs only 61 yards in the game against the Jets at New York Sunday to wipe out the mark that Brown set with Cleveland in 1963.

Since Simpson has rambled for 100 yards or more in each of 10 games this season, his chances of shattering Brown's record are excellent.

But to hit the 2,000-yard plateau, Simpson would need 197 yards, a much more formidable task. But that kind of yardage is within Simpson's ability, as he proved in the season opener at New England when he ripped off 250 yards for an NFL record.

And in Sunday's game against the Patriots here, Simpson ran for 219 yards on a snow-coated field as the Bills trimmed New England 37-13. The yardage gave Simpson another NFL record — 100 or more yards in 10 regular-season games.

That eclipsed Brown's record of nine. And it enabled O.J. to tie another of Brown's marks. Until Sunday, Brown had been the only player to get two 200-yard games, rushing for 232 against Dallas and 223 against Philadelphia en route to his 1,863-yard season 10 years ago.

Patriot Coach Chuck Fairbanks said the Jets can stop Simpson if they break both his ankles.

Bills Coach Lou Saban was rather philosophical about records. "I'm not going to kill off O.J. for a record," he said. "Winning against the Jets is the only important thing."

Wide receiver Bob Chandler was more enthusiastic about Simpson's record prospects.

"There's nobody who wants to get the record for O.J. more than the guys on this team," Chandler said, "and that's because none of us have ever, ever heard him mention the record."

Simpson, looking forward to the Jets game, said, "That's going to be a lot of yards to get next week."

He noted that the Bills have a chance to crack Miami's year old team rushing record of 2,960 yards. Buffalo needs 177 yards on the ground to turn the trick.

"If I can break the individual record and if the team can beat Miami's record, it'll be the biggest day of my life," Simpson said.

Simpson is within easy reach of another Jim Brown mark, the most carries in one season. Simpson has 298, only seven away from Brown's record 305 in 1961.

Groesbeck sets record in swim try

Gary Groesbeck set a new record in the 200 yard freestyle event during the annual intramural swim meet last week.

Groesbeck was clocked at 1:56.95, topping the old record held by Doug Ferrell.

Dominating the hall competition was the team CL-1, winning the 100 yard freestyle, 50 yard butterfly, 50 yard backstroke and the 200 yard freestyle. They won more events than any other team.

The 11th branch of the 9th Stake won the most events of the branches. They won the 50 yard butterfly, 100 yard individual medley, and they broke the old mark in the 200 yard freestyle which was set by Arsonal last year.

In the independents, the team with the most wins was Sam Hall. It won the 50 yard breaststroke, the 100 yard individual medley relay, and the 200 yard freestyle.

The coed relays were new this year. They added to the excitement and to the variety of talent. The girls looked quite at home in the water and produced good participation from the students.

Poly One takes two from Over-hill-gang

Polynesian I took two straight games from the Over-the-hill-gang Thursday Dec. 6 to win the AAAA championship in volleyball.

With spikes, and brilliant defensive plays, Poly I still only managed to squeak by, 16-14, in their first game.

In the second game a couple of costly errors spelled the difference as Polynesian I took the championship 15-13.

In AAA action, the Jets toppled the T-3 team in the first game 15-11. Not to be disgraced, T-3 rallied in the second game and won 15-9.

Fired up by their victory, T-3 carried their momentum into the final game and won the title easily 15-5.

The second championship, class AA, saw the team Los Sucios completely dominate the first game in topping the Gamblers, 15-4. The Gamblers made a valiant effort in the second game, but could not stop Los Sucios, as they fell 15-12. The No. 1 spot was earned by Los Sucios in two straight games.

In the class A championship, Sam Hall II beat LASA 15-9. However, LASA came back and took the second game by an identical 15-9 score. The third and deciding game was close the whole way with Sam Hall II finally winning it and the championship, 15-11.

Out of 660 players who started three weeks ago, only 32 can now be called champions, but participation helped make this year's intramural volleyball program a success.

Dallas gets Oiler
No. 1 draft choice

(AP) — Baltimore's 16-3 victory over Miami Sunday, combined with Houston's 33-7 loss to Pittsburgh, assured the Dallas Cowboys of the No. 1 selection in next year's college football draft.

Dallas owns Houston's No. 1 choice and the Oilers are certain of finishing with the worst record in the NFL. Even if Houston upsets Cincinnati Sunday, the Oilers would finish 2-12. The Colts were the only team that could have finished that poorly until they upset Miami.

WAC grid teams excel, national records tumble

As the Marriott Center basketball fans, the grid season is just a memory but the WAC football is still a fall has left its wake in the books with 57 WAC records broken or tied.

The WAC also aided in a rewrite book of the NCAA record book as a dozen national marks fell to the conference quartet of Danny White, ASU quarterback; Jay Miller, BYU receiver; Steve Odum, Utah flanker and kick return specialist; and Morris Owens, ASU wingback.

White set seven marks and Odum three while Owens and Miller added one apiece.

Overall, White concluded his career with 14 league marks erasing in seven cases records held by Virgil Carter, BYU's quarterback from 1964-66.

The oldest record to fall was John Jacobs' mark of 8.15 yards per play in one season, set in 1962 while Jacobs was the quarterback at ASU. White broke that one with a national record of 8.15 yards.

Jay Miller broke the national mark of Ace Hendricks, former New Mexico receiver in most catches in one game with a grand total of 22. The old mark was 14.

Real gift of Christ

Ho, ho, ho, chery pie, office parties, post-office lines, bright lights, reindeer displays, frazzled housewives, financially insolvent husbands, smiling children, and vacations from school.

These represent the many faces of Christmas in the American culture today.

One-thousand-nine-hundred and seventy-three years ago, Jesus Christ was born. To Christians, the life of Christ is the most significant religious event in the history of the world.

The purpose of remembering His birth is one of sacredness and spiritual adoration. Christmas time should be a time of serious contemplation—perhaps a mental review of the past 365 days and an introspective view of the coming year. Consideration should be given as to how the ideals of Christ can be better attained.

People who profess a strong belief in Jesus Christ should be asking questions like: How can peace be achieved in the world? How can the brotherhood of man become more Christ-like? What can be done to eliminate the evils of our society and to foster the basic religious concepts of good will to all?

However, we often find ourselves concentrating on insignificant matters such as "How much should be spent for Aunt Matilda's present? Will Johnny be pleased with all his toys? Why can't the city allow display lights to remain on 24 hours per day?"

During this Christmas season it is a challenge for us to take time out from these mundane matters, and concentrate on the real purpose for the holiday. There is still room for Santa Claus, for Christmas trees and holiday dinners as long as these areas add to the joy of the season, not blot out its meaning.

Take time to think about the real gift of Christmas, the life of the Savior and the example he has set. The word CHRIST is the most important part of CHRISTMAS.

Tired flights home

The warnings are given out every year. Still, BYU has been losing at least one student each year during the Christmas holidays because of auto accidents. Several others find their vacations ruined or cut short due to injuries received in accidents.

Admittedly, all accidents can't be avoided. Still, many students fail to take precautions that could better their chances of arriving home safely. Several factors cause the majority of student accidents. These include bad weather, high speeds, sleepy drivers and malfunctioning cars. All of these areas can be corrected to some degree.

Bad weather calls for slower speeds and greater caution while driving. Students should also take heed to suggestions given by the Utah Safety Council, reminding motorists to keep car windows free from snow and ice at all times.

The usual high-speed rush to get home may be slowed down a bit this year due to the price of gasoline and the energy shortage. Traveling at slower speeds may only mean an hour or two's difference in getting home, but it can save both lives and money.

Too many students also try to drive without much sleep and in a non-stop pattern almost guaranteed to weary the most rested soul. If proper rest is impossible to get before starting out, drivers should have enough sense to stop and sleep when tiredness overtakes them.

A few minutes is usually all that is necessary to see that a car is in proper condition before starting for home. Checks should be made for such things as adequate oil and water, proper tire inflation and on brakes and headlights.

Safety precautions are always worth much more than the little time and effort they take. It would be a nice change to have the entire student body back safely from Christmas.

Christmas will always come

When people get into the yuletide spirit each year, they often forget to pause and listen to the voices from the past that speak of the true spirit of Christmas.

This year has been one of political, economic and social upheaval for the United States. Suddenly all that talk of depression and inflation is making us aware that all or most of our physical comforts in life may be quite dispensable.

But above the clatter of a struggling monetary system and the dull monotonous hum that shouts corruption in our government, there will be a Christmas 1979.

For many, it will not mean money toys. It may just mean the love of a good family. While everyone is crying about the evils in our nation, there will be a moment this Christmas, when Watergate and the like will not matter.

When we sit alone in the quiet of the night reflecting over the past year, it might come at the moment we see our little brothers and sisters enjoying Santa Claus the way we used to do on Christmas morning.

Some of us will enjoy it more than others because we chose to give that little something extra to help put a turkey on someone's table, or a toy in a little child's hand. Many decided to help Santa Claus continue to do his job this year regardless of man-made problems like the energy crisis.

At BYU, students have been working for weeks now in Sub-for-Santa to give that little extra service and effort that characterizes our different faiths.

Christmas is more than Watergate. It is more than an energy crisis or our petty grievances about grooming standards at BYU. Christmas is that time of year when we should practice what we should have been practicing all year, brotherhood, service, etc. The adjectives are endless and well worth repeating each year.

It is time to show our neighbors again that we still care for them. It is time for us to remember why we are here and the Savior, Jesus Christ, who made it possible.

Yes, Christmas is a sentimental time. It should never be a sad one.

Dr. Seuss said it very well in his tale entitled "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas." He pointed out that even if the toys, the goodies and all the physical pleasures of the season were stolen, Christmas would still come.

Dr. Seuss was right. No matter what happens in the world to make our lives unpleasant, there will always be something to be grateful for in our hearts—and Christmas will always come.

Buzzing with happy sounds

It is the noon hour.

The area is congested and noisy.

A group of five people is gathered at one table. They are laughing, not extremely loud, but nevertheless in an audible fashion.

To the east, a tall, California-beach-type guy is persistently trying to become better acquainted with the foxey-looking chick sitting across from him. She is pretending to be annoyed, and yet, she is encouraging him.

To the west, two coeds are busily chatting about their past week-end activities. "He looked so handsome," the brunette says, "in his new sweater. When I opened the door and saw him standing there, I just melted." The blonde recalls her Saturday night, "Gary said that I am the first girl he has found here that means anything special to him. I can't wait until my parents meet him."

Several males are seated at the next table. They are discussing Friday's basketball game. With vivid gestures and language, they re-live the excitement of an athletic event. Their voices are quite loud and can be easily heard within a 15-foot radius.

A middle-aged man sits alone, munching crackers, and rhythmically tapping his umbrella on the leg of the table. The beat is not quite the Blood, Sweat and Tears style, but rather the Lawrence Welk version.

At least a dozen people are observed sleeping, some snoring, some snoring and others merely mumbling in their droes. People are seen combing their hair, pinching their nose, filing their nails, balancing checkbooks (with added outward expressions of frustration), sewing, knitting, applying make-up, biting their nails, cleaning their with a pencil, writing letters, eating a chewing gum and occasionally (but very rarely) sitting in quiet meditation.

As each person either seals himself at a table or removes himself from a table, a screeeeeee is heard which is only two or three below the required level to shatter the glass. Multiply this excruciating sound by the several hundred times per hour that it is practiced and the result is a headache.

Include the noise of gongs, buzzers, dropped books and the headache becomes unbearable. Stir in five or six unusually intelligent, snoring, knitting, sewing, and a wa of constant throat-clearings—and the pot must be vacated. No sane individual rationally tolerate another moment in surroundings.

By the way, this pictorial scene at BYU is not indicative of the cafeteria at the Wilkie Center.

Ironically, it depicts the reverse reaction at our library.

Letters to the Editor

Get it together

Editor:

I am concerned about the dress standards here at BYU. Before coming I understood the standards to be somewhat different from that which is now being enforced.

While attempting to practice for my bowling class, I was informed that I could not enter any of the game rooms. I was wearing a pair of blue cotton slacks, and it seems that these are not permissible. Yet, upon entering the Cannon Center Cafeteria, my roommates and I observed a faded pair of loosely hanging blue-jeans, and jean jacket on what is suppose to be a feminine BYU coed.

The dress code for this University does not exactly condone this type of apparel. It states: "So-called grubby attire may be worn only in the immediate living area of residence halls and at informal outdoor activities but not in dining areas." Therefore I was under the impression that a girl wearing such clothing would not be served. However, there is seldom a meal that goes by without seeing one of these coeds come prancing in.

If blue-jeans are going to be acceptable dress on one part of campus, and blue brushed cotton pants (which I admit sometimes look similar to jeans) are not allowed on another, then I perceive this to be a double standard. I sincerely hope it is corrected promptly.

Editor:

I would like to suggest that prior to soliciting funds for an addition to the library, we launch a campaign to keep the copy machines in the present library functional. I have just returned to my table after an all-out search for a copy machine that is not "Out of Order," and I found one, yes ONE, in the entire building; but, alas, it was accompanied by an outrageous line of people carrying huge volumes of information to be copied. I now have two regrets: 1) I didn't get my copy made; and 2) I donated a dollar to the library fund.

Standards

Editor:

The problem of maintaining University dress standards is definitely a real one, as was pointed out so excellently in President Oak's message. I see, however, a problem of equal severity in the attitude of many professors and students as regards the enforcement of University standards.

I have heard professors, and students, speak of "rooting out the evil of hair over the ears" with the same vehemence they speak of

Christmas wish

As we approach the Christmas season, many of us change our attitudes about life and treat each other with more love and respect than previous to this season. As I read the many complaints in the paper, I wish to express my feelings concerning complaints.

I have heard Joseph Smith after days of walking without shoes—his feet cut and bleeding, did not complain. When a wicked Governor tried to exterminate Mormons, Joseph Smith is quoted (approximately) in saying, "If the Latter-day Saints don't find out how wicked this man is then I'll have to tell them." This is one of the few times he has been quoted in saying something unkind about his enemies. He was known for always being full of love.

Brothers and sisters, I implore you before you complain or say something of ill nature, think twice. The Savior on the cross asked God to forgive the people that had put him there. He did not complain.

May the Lord bless us all at this Christmas Season and throughout the year to truly love one another.

Simon says: goodbye Love

By BERT FOX

President Nixon has put another of his House aides out to pasture. Due to "unwillingness to work the levers of power," the President has replaced Gov. Love with Deputy Treasury Secretary W. E. Simon as the new energy czar.

There is a definite need to displace the correct method which will lead us out of crisis. But contradiction and confusion the picture and distort the plot.

In a matter of days, for example government's "energy czar" switches calling gasoline rationing a remote continent to saying it is unavoidable.

On the same day a prominent se forecasts the shortage of gasoline at 21 per cent. America's self-sufficiency is only 7 per cent.

After having declared for months that the trans-Alaska pipeline would be ready to oil by 1977, the government suddenly announces the line won't be ready until 1980, while the Secretary of the Interior is insisting on the basis of one act of figure gasoline rationing will have to be imposed, the first of the year, the Secretary of Treasury is maintaining that "If we intelligent about it, we should be able to it."

What should the public think enlightened by these facts?

If intelligent plans are to be laid for m America self-sufficient in fuel, the U.S. need to know the most accurate fuel projects possible.

If Mr. Simon is to perform his new job he must be given enough rein to get the done. Mr. Love has said he was frustrated in job by too small a staff and an inability to to the President's ear.

Why should the public make volu sacrifices if the government doesn't precisely where it is going on energy conservation?

I hope President Nixon has made a change the good and not just another change. Simon has a great task ahead of him and need all the facts and cooperation possible lead us from the present "energy crisis."
